Merah Putih Satellite Successfully Launched

Jakarta – On August 7, 2018, PT Telkom Indonesia (Persero) Tbk ("Telkom") has successfully launched Telkom Merah Putih Satellite from SLC 40 Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, Florida, USA. Merah Putih Satellite will take orbital position of 108 degrees East Longitude. Merah Putih Satellite was manufactured by commercial satellite maker company Space System Loral (SSL) and launched by SpaceX.

Merah Putih Satellite carries 60 active transponders which consist of 48 C-Band and 12 Extended C-Band that cover the whole Indonesia, South East Asia, and South Asia. This satellite is expected to fulfill national demand for transponders as complementary infrastructure needed to reach areas with archipelagic topography like Indonesia. Merah Putih Satellite will have a significant role in providing broadband communication services in areas that cannot be reached by fiber optic technology or any other communication system.

Merah Putih Satellite will strengthen Telkom Group's international business arm and support the Company in becoming a strong global digital telco company.

Sincerely yours,

DEWI
